Farm and Stock.

In abnormal seasons, particularly ike this, in which many corn, potato and tobacco fields will of necessity be sbandoned on account of weeds, and sites intended for these crops not u'ilized, catch creps often are more profitable than the one originally ntended. Among them are late pota oes. field beans (navy, red- and white kidney), buckwheat, millit and sweet Potatoes can be planted any time from July 15 to August 15, or even later, owing to the character of the soil, elevation and latitude. Beans are legumes, and make ideal sites for wheat, rye, red top or timothy. In latitude 39 degree, they should not be planted before June 25, and you can tilow, as you go South, seven days for each degree of latitude.

Plant in drills thirty luches apart, and cultivate shallow twice, or use grain drill by stopping up alternate boles and not cultivate. holes and not cultivate.

Buckwheat can be sown from June 20 to July 20; can be harvested with an old fashloned grain cradle, dropper or self-rake. A mowing machine with a clover-seed attachment can be utilized. It makes a good site for the small grains and is better than millet as a weed destroyer.

Millet can be sown from June to August-a question of rainfall. Use southern-grown seed, and harvest before the seeds are half ripe, unless you want them for seed or poultry. If cut at right time, it is better than timothy for all kinds of live stock. Sweet corn, if you have a market for roasting ears, or are feeding dairy or beef cattle, is often very profitable. One extrems usually follows another, and that low lying field that the crop drowned out, will make an ideal site for one or all of these, We have not gone into detail; merely called your attention to a few of the socalled catch crops adapted to Southern Ohio, Indiana. Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee.-Ex.
